About Feijenoord Stadium - De Kuip

Rotterdam Stadium

In addition to a steel supporting structure, the building mainly consists of concrete and glass. In retrospect, this business-like, functional architecture fits in well with Feyenoord's no-words-but-deeds mentality. The stadium was extensively renovated in 1994. De Kuip now has the status of a municipal monument.

Events and concerts

In addition to football matches, major events and concerts are also organized in De Kuip. In 1978, Bob Dylan was the first pop musician to perform there. During the Feyenoord tour, the most special places of De Kuip are visited, such as the players' tunnel and along the line of the field. The guides tell about the history of the stadium and the football club. The tour ends with a visit to the Feyenoord Museum. There is a special private tour of 2 hours for groups of 15 people or more. Dutch, German and English speaking guides are available. You can also go to De Kuip for team building. Including abseiling, a football clinic or a Communication Clinic in the Press Center.
